

Status Update March 27, 2011

Thank you for visiting Esther's Easel. I had a complete knee replacement January 31st so I have been on the side lines for a while. I am getting better every day so hope to be back to teaching before too long.

My recertification week with Dorothy Dent is April 4th so I will be attending and will do 4 new paintings.

I have several new students that want to learn to paint. I will start new classes as soon as I feel I can do my best to give them all my attention. I am looking forward to getting back in the swing and have fun teaching anyone young or old that want to learn a great fun past time.

Keep in touch and call me anytime for more information about classes.

Sincerely Esther Shields
